HIS FIRST SOLEMN HIGH MASS
Celebrated at St. Patrick's Church by Rev. Michael Joseph Byrne—Sermon by His Preceptor, Rev. John P. M. Doyle From Text: "Come Ye After Me and I Will Make Ye Fishers of Men."

They are sent as were their proto- types, the apostles, to lives of daily sacrifice, to lead the people to the Kingdom of God. They are sent to teach the people, to bring them nearer to the Kingdom of God, to enable them to share in the life of the Holy Ghost, and, behold, I am with ye all days, even to the consummation of the world.

REV. MICHAEL JOSEPH BYRNE
Rev. Michael Joseph Byrne celebrated his first solemn high mass at St. Patrick's church, Sunday at 10:30 o'clock. While the great bell which his brother, John F. Byrne, gave in loving memory of their mother, Mrs. Joseph Byrne, called to worship a gathering of relatives, friends, neighbors and long-time acquaintances assembled in such numbers that the congregation overflowed into the galleries.

In designated pews were Rev. Father Byrne's children and near relatives. The altar was adorned with choice roses, the altar hangings and vestments were white and gold; the entire service partook of the nature of a great fam- ily rejoicing and thanksgiving.

afflicted soul. Events like the present, he said, emphasize the necessity of the faithful picking new leaders to carry on the faith of his fathers and standing with new loyalty for religion, the clergy and the church.

For the Medical Profession.
For the medical profession, Dr. D. J. Shahan, spoke earnestly and with oc- casional touches of humor, dwelling on the dignity of the priest's high calling, the good which it enables him to do, and exhorting the chief events of the day as a magnificent tribute of his home friends to Father Byrne and a splendid evidence of their love for him. He made a delicate and touching ref- erence to the newly ordained priest's aged father and beloved mother, and closed by saying that his own career Father Byrne might have un- measured success.

Mayor Murphy's Cordial Welcome.
Who called upon by Father Byrne, Mayor T. Murphy said that in his official capacity he was frequently required to welcome organizations and others to the city. He remarked that there was a personal element of cor- dial joy in thus welcoming back one who had not only been his friend for years, but his shopmate in earlier days. Even then the general disposition of Father Byrne was to be friendly with all his associates. Mayor Mur- phy wished the new clergyman abun- dant success in his new vocation.

Tribute to Grandfather and Mother.
Dr. Patrick Cassidy evinced consid- erable emotion when called upon to review the life of the priest, who died at the age of 81, but a second in eter- nity, yet a long time in human life, he said. He recalled Father Byrne's childhood, boyhood, manhood, he felt that today's event could be best ex- pressed by saying that Father Byrne, a human being, was a beautiful tribute to the clergyman's devout grandfather, another holy man like himself, who had lived a life of sacrifice and devotion to his faith and his people.

Brother's Apt Speech.
John F. Byrne made a bright and ap- pealing, thanking all the good friends of the family for their expressions of sympathy and good wishes. He drew upon his own experiences in obtain- ing what so many seek and obtain not—peace.

Then Rev. Father Byrne acknowledged the felicitations of his friends, all assembled standing and giving him a little salute of greeting. He reviewed the life of the priest, who died at the age of 81, but a second in eter- nity, yet a long time in human life, he said. He recalled Father Byrne's childhood, boyhood, manhood, he felt that today's event could be best ex- pressed by saying that Father Byrne, a human being, was a beautiful tribute to the clergyman's devout grandfather, another holy man like himself, who had lived a life of sacrifice and devotion to his faith and his people.

Aged Father at Service.
Rev. Father Byrne's aged father, Joseph Byrne, who is nearly 81, was able to attend the mass but was not strong enough to be present at the dinner. His mother, Mrs. Mary Byrne, of Albany, died about 28 years ago.

Was Never an Actor.
The new priest will be 57 in Novem- ber. When he was a boy he was in the monastery in Hoboken, but at that time was not certain of his own vocation. He was a returned home, went into business, and in 1880 married Miss Mary E. Scanlon of Norwich. She died in 1890. They had three children, James, now in business in Boston, who for a time was on the coast guard, and two daughters, one of their two children was present Sun- day: John, a doctor in Baltimore, who married a Maryland girl, and Miss Mary, who is now in the convent of the Sisters of the Holy Family in Brook- lyn, N. Y. The family lived for fifteen years in Providence, and later moved to Taftville, where Father Byrne joined the company of the Holy Family. John F. was the inspirer and the author of their theatrical successes. The family moved to Taftville in 1890, where he was in the company of the Holy Family.
